RE: Widex high definition hearing

Dear Marjie,

Three years ago I purchased RESOUND hearing aids with molded earpieces and rediscovered the joy of hearing conversations—at least in non-noisy environments. What I experienced is digital amplification that enhanced sounds that I had trouble hearing along with a programmed amplification of all the other sounds. Each time that I turned on the hearing aid there was a dramatic increase of all sounds. I was resigned to artificial, amplified hearing with a system that was overwhelmed by my own voice and amplified the sounds of my eating and drinking to the extent that I had to choose between eating and joining in the conversation at our dinner table.

Thank goodness my old hearing aids malfunctioned, because last Thursday you introduced me to Widex High Definition Hearing and you restored my joy in listening. I can now hear individual conversations in crowded rooms, sing along with the congregation, and enjoy my family at the dinner table. I hate to take these things off, even to go to bed!

This is phenomenal. Hearing is so natural and comfortable with Widex that I found myself going around the fellowship hall at church seeking out the soft voiced people that I used to avoid in group situations. Thank you, and a big thanks to Doug Best for bringing us together.

Best personal regards,
